Knowledge workers need
Forskerforbundet

This is Forskerforbundet

Forskerforbundet – The Norwegian Association of Researchers (NAR) – is Norway's largest and leading trade union and special interest organisation for employees in research, higher education and dissemination of knowledge. We've been fighting for better working conditions since 1955.

Our members hold scientific, administrative and librarian positions at universities, university colleges, research institutes, museums, archives, university hospitals and in public administration.

Forskerforbundet has a dedicated association for technical and administrative staff (FFTA) – a network for all members who are technical and administrative staff and/or hold a managerial position. Membership in this association is voluntary.

Visit forskerforbundet.no/ffta for more information.

Why you should become a member:

- We fight for you to get a higher salary.
- We have your back if you experience work conflicts.
- We help you negotiate the terms of your employment contract.
- We fight for academic freedom and increased employee involvement in the workplace.
- We offer a variety of member courses and one of Norway's best banking and insurance deals.

We are actively working to secure technical and administrative staff:

- Good working conditions
- Less temporary employment and more permanent positions
- Competitive salaries
- Job security
- Opportunities for career development
- Visibility and recognition for their expertise
